PostgreSQL recovery field guide

Write-ahead logging keeps committed transactions durable after a crash.

The WAL_RECOVERY_TARGET identifier selects the recovery destination.

Physical page two - printed page 1

Point-in-time recovery replays archived WAL to restore an earlier state.

Operators take regular base backups before replaying the transaction log.

SELECT pg_switch_wal(); -- force a transaction log segment switch